Professor Allen made her European debut at the Teatro del Liceo Opera House in Barcelona, Spain, to an acclaimed production of Gluck’s Orfeo. She was subsequently hired by the NBC TV Opera Company to sing the title role in Puccini’s Madame Butterfly. On the strength of that performance the Metropolitan Opera sought her out, and she subsequently performed many roles with them, including Zerlina in Mozart’s Don Giovanni, Micaela in Bizet’s Carmen, Oscar in Verdi’s Ballo in Maschera, and again Amore in Orfeo. Professor Allen sang with the Santa Fe Opera Company often before teaching first at Catholic University of America and then at Birmingham-Southern, where she directed La Boheme in the College premier in the spring of 2002.

Since 1974 Professor Cook has served at different times as Organist, Organist-Director, Music Director, or Director of the Chancel Choir at Birmingham’s First United Methodist Church; and from 1985 to 1993 he was Director of the College’s Hilltop Singers. He has played recitals throughout the Southeast and has also been organ consultant to many churches in the state, counting eighteen instruments in his opus list. In 1986, working in cooperation with Jean-Louis Coignet of Casavant Frères, he was responsible for the tonal design of the Cooper Recital Organ located in the Hill Recital Hall of Birmingham-Southern College. Professor Cook has done important research in the manuscript tradition of the thirteenth-century French motet. In the last fifteen years, he has taken an active interest in the application of computer technology to problems faced by practicing musicians. His web site on the history of the organ continues to attract international attention.
